David Tegeder

associate professor of history

“Ditch of Dreams: The Cross Florida Barge Canal and the Struggle for Florida’s Future”

For centuries, men dreamed of cutting a canal across the Florida peninsula. Intended to reduce shipping times, this dream was championed in the early 20th century as a way to make the mostly rural state a center of national commerce and trade. With federal funding, work on the Cross Florida Barge Canal began in the 1930s, but the canal quickly became a lightning rod for controversy, and pressure from environmental citizen activists forced it to a halt in 1971. Steven Noll and David Tegeder tell the complex story of competing interests amid the changing political landscape of modern Florida in their book, The Ditch of Dreams, which received the Florida Historical Society’s 2010 Rembert Patrick Award for a scholarly book on a Florida history topic.

Noll holds a Ph.D. in American history, an M.A., and an M.Ed. from the University of Florida, and a B.A. from the College of William and Mary. Prior to The Ditch of Dreams, he published two other books, Mental Retardation in America and Feeble Minded in our Midst.

Tegeder holds a Ph.D. in U.S. Southern history and an M.A. in U.S. history from the University of Florida and a B.A. from the University of Central Florida. He has published widely on the history of Southern race and labor relations and environmental history, and he has published and presented widely on these topics.

SEPTEMBER 24

Douglas Brinkley
professor of history
Rice University

“Saving Wild Florida: From John James Audubon to Barack Obama”

What would Roosevelt think? That’s the question being posed by presidential historian Douglas Brinkley, who in 2009 published Wilderness Warrior, a biography that focuses on Theodore Roosevelt’s pioneering crusade to create national parks and preserve environmental havens such as the Everglades. President Roosevelt, an avid bird-watcher, naturalist, and founding father of America’s conservation movement, camped and fished along the very Gulf Coast that is now struggling with the after-effects of the April 20 Deepwater Horizon oil spill.

Brinkley, dubbed by The Chicago Tribune as “America’s new past master,” is professor of history at Rice University and a contributing editor at Vanity Fair. A prolific and widely acclaimed author, Brinkley has had six of his books selected as New York Times Notable Books of the Year, and his 2007 book, The Great Deluge, the story of Hurricane Katrina, won the Robert F. Kennedy Book Award. This summer he published Witness to America, a newly updated collection of 150 first-hand accounts of American history from the Revolutionary War to present. He holds a bachelor’s degree from Ohio State University and a master’s and Ph.D. from Georgetown University.

OCTOBER 14

Carlton Ward, Jr.

“Florida Cowboys: Keepers of the Last Frontier”

Carlton Ward, Jr., knows the lay of the land. An eighth-generation Floridian from a pioneering ranching family, Ward has built a career out of capturing images of natural Florida to call attention to conservation issues in the state. Most recently, he has documented Florida’s ranches and the people who work on them for his book Florida Cowboys: Keepers of the Last Frontier.

An ecologist by training, he wrote Conservation Photography, the first thesis on the emerging field, while he was in graduate school. His first book, The Edge of Africa, grew out of a three-year project with the Smithsonian Institution and received international acclaim. Ward regularly produces stories for newspapers and magazines, including Smithsonian, GEO, National Wildlife, Africa Geographic, Nature Conservancy, and Outdoor Photographer. Between international assignments, he is focused on Florida conservation issues and has begun several long-term projects documenting the state’s vanishing natural heritage. He is a founding member of the International League of Conservation Photographers and founded the Legacy Institute for Nature & Culture in 2004 to promote Florida conservation through science and art.

NOVEMBER 4*

Dale Gyure
associate professor of architecture
Lawrence Technological University

“Frank Lloyd Wright and Florida Southern College”

Florida Southern College is one of the most interesting and autobiographical designs ever produced by America’s most renowned architect, Frank Lloyd Wright. In creating this remarkable ensemble of buildings – the world’s largest single-site collection of his work – Mr. Wright drew upon his interest in nature, his progressive education, and his passionate belief in democracy. The result is a unique and unified vision of modern, Floridian architecture.

Dale Allen Gyure, an architectural historian, has written the first in-depth study of Mr. Wright’s only campus, Frank Lloyd Wright’s Florida Southern College, due out in October 2010. Gyure teaches architectural history at Lawrence Technological University and historic preservation at Goucher College. His research focuses on American architecture of the 19th and 20th centuries, particularly the intersections of architecture, education, and society, and his work has been widely published. Before earning his Ph.D. from the University of Virginia, Gyure practiced law in Tampa. In 2000, he received the Carter Manny Award for the year’s best dissertation in architectural history. His second book, The Chicago Schoolhouse, 1856-2006: High School Architecture and Educational Reform, will be published in 2011.

JANUARY 13*

Gary Noesner
retired FBI negotiator

“Calm, Creative Communications in Crisis: My Life as an FBI Hostage Negotiator”

Gary Noesner’s world is hard to imagine for most of us. In 30 years with the FBI, the last 10 as chief of its Crisis Negotiation Unit of the Critical Incident Response Group, he led law enforcement’s response to prison riots, militia standoffs, religious zealot sieges, terrorist embassy takeovers, airplane hijackings, and overseas kidnappings involving American citizens.

His September 2010 memoir, Stalling for Time, records his involvement in some of the nation’s most high-profile FBI cases from the last three decades, including the hijacking of the Achille Lauro cruise ship; the Branch Davidian siege in Waco, Texas; and the Washington, D.C., sniper case. Noesner grew up in Florida and graduated from Florida Southern College before attending the FBI Academy in Quantico, Va. He retired from the FBI in 2003 and since has served as a senior vice president with Control Risks, an international risk consultant firm. He has appeared on television documentaries produced by A&E, the History Channel, Discovery, TLC, and National Geographic. He is the founder of the National Council of Negotiation Associations.

ROBERT & ROSE STAHL CRIMINAL JUSTICE LECTURE

The Robert and Rose Stahl Criminal Justice Lecture honors the memory of Robert and Rose Stahl. Mr. Stahl served more than 30 years as a police officer, including his years as Chief of Police in North Miami Beach, Florida. The family of Robert and Rose Stahl has generously made these lectures available to Florida Southern College.

FEBRUARY 10

Canter Brown, Jr.
executive vice president and chief legal officer
Fort Valley (Ga.) State University

“I Can’t Believe All That Happened in Polk County! Are You Sure?”

On the occasion of Polk County’s 150th anniversary, native son Canter Brown, Jr., will tell tales of some of the extraordinary people and events in the County’s history. He promises to name some of the more colorful saints and scoundrels while underscoring the diversity of Polk’s experience. Without a doubt, his hometown of Fort Meade will come into play, too.

One of Florida’s leading historians, Brown holds a B.A., J.D., and Ph.D. from The Florida State University. He has written extensively on Florida and Southern history, including 10 books. Two titles were widely praised: Florida’s Peace River Frontier earned him the Florida Historical Society’s Rembert W. Patrick Award, and Ossian Bingley Hart: Florida’s Loyalist Reconstruction Governor was given a Certificate of Commendation by the American Association of State and Local History. He has written a two-volume history of Polk County: In the Midst of All That Makes Life Worth Living: Polk County to 1940 and None Could Have Richer Memories: Polk County Since 1940.
